Humanity constantly attributes its greatest achievements to the influence of the divine. However, what it is that the gods truly try to convey? When Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin planted the American flag on the moon, the influence of the god of the sea and the god of love were clear to see. They simply said 'M'. Now, it is time for you to raise those flags and see the true message of the gods for yourself.

- With the aid of the god of war and the god of thunder, Christopher Columbus sets sail from Spain to start his first voyage across the Atlantic Ocean.
- With the aid of the first god of the sky and the god of thunder, George Vancouver sets sail from England to start his voyage towards the northwest coast of North America.
- With the aid of the first god of the sky and the god of time, Roz Savage completes her crossing of the Indian Ocean and becomes the first woman to solo row the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian Oceans.
- With the aid of the god of the sea and the god of war, the Essex departs from Nantucket on its fateful last journey.
- With the aid of the god of travel and the god of thunder, eight days after they set sail, Thor Heyerdahl and his crew are safely sailing across the Atlantic Ocean aboard Ra II.
- With the aid of the god of war and the god of thunder, Charles Darwin set sail on the H.M.S Beagle to travel the world.
- With the aid of the god of travel and the god of love, English navigator James Cook sights New Zealand
- With the aid of the god of travel and the god of thunder, the Mayflower finally sets sail after leaving the Speedwell behind
- With the aid of the god of travel and the god of thunder, the Endurance of Ernest Shackelton slips beneath the ocean's surface and sinks below the waters of the Weddel sea.
